If Prohibition Went.
Only Negro Dismissed.
National City Tale.
Remorseless With Cotton.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE.

(Copyright, 1929, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

THE president, according to Washington reports, agrees with Mr. Wickersham that all of the states should share in prohibition enforcement. Prohibition machinery must be made stronger, with state and national governments standing loyally behind it.

ON THE other side of the fence, the war against prohibition continues. An organization of young "crusaders," with headquarters in Cleveland, has vowed that prohibition shall go. There are many interesting names among the young crusaders not dismayed, evidently, of the sad fate of some crusaders of old.

SUPPOSE just for the sake of supposing that anti-prohibition should win and prohibition be eliminated.

How would the bootleg crime army be absorbed?

At least 50,000 determined and desperate men are in that army. They have become hardened to quick shooting and accustomed to very "easy money."

WHAT would they do if bootlegging, with its hundreds of millions of annual profits vanished overnight?

Does any one think the army would peaceably disband, returning to dull hard work for small pay?

Hardly. For the first few years, when, if ever, prohibition takes wings, hire for your business and home extra watchmen. They will be needed.

THE only Negro student at West Point is dismissed "honorably," for deficiency in mathematics.

Sixty-three white men failed in examinations with him and were also dismissed.

PREJUDICE had nothing to do with it, although Lonzo Souleigh Parham, the Negro cadet dismissed, is the fourteenth to enter the Academy and the eleventh to be dismissed at the end of six months.

IT IS no reflection on any race to say that capacity for intensive mental effort, such as West Point demands, can hardly be acquired in two or three generations.

A fast-running horse, and a man thinking clearly, go back through many specialized generations of running and thinking.

Why are Jewish boys and girls, usually, leaders in our public school classes? Because their ancestors were studying when ours were running over the British Isles, their stomachs painted blue with woad.

"MARK now how a plain tale shall put you down," is the substance of President Charles E. Mitchell's report on the National City Bank for 1929.

Earnings were more than twenty-six millions—five and a half millions more than in 1928.

THREE millions went to a contingency reserve, $9,406,327 was added to undivided profits, stockholders got $13,510,000. Quite a business for one bank.

The number of shareholders was multiplied by three in the year, which ended with new high records in resources, deposits and invested capital.

Mr. Mitchell says he is optimistic about the future. He might be.

FROM Portland to San Francisco, Air Mail Pilot Ralph Virden flew at an average speed of 201 miles an hour, breaking records, and climbing 12,000 feet to get the desired "fast tail wind" to drive him along.

THE postoffice has done more to develop American aviation than all other agencies combined.

President Hoover and Postmaster Brown, and the brave, brilliantly able mail pilots, deserve the public's thanks.

WATKIN WINNER IN COURT FIGHT

Common Pleas Ruling Reverses Liquor Law Conviction, $250 Fine by City Bench.

The conviction of George Watkin, McDonald street potter, who was fined $250 by Municipal Judge J. C. Hanley upon a liquor possession count last summer, was reversed in a decision handed down by Judge W. F. Lones in common pleas court, Lisbon, yesterday. This ends the litigation unless it is carried to the appellate court by the city.

Watkins was arrested after police seized a half bushel basket of bottled liquor hidden in weeds in a lot adjoining the Watkin home.

The case was carried to the common pleas court on error by Attorney Ben L. Bennett, counsel for Watkin.

Prohibition Marks Its Tenth Birthday

WET SENATOR ASKS REPEAL OF DRY LAW

Blaine of Wisconsin Says it Cannot be Enforced.

FAILS, HE SAYS

Asserts Liberalization Would Re-establish Temperance.

By International News Service.

(Editor's Note:—Today ends the first 10 years of national prohibition under the eighteenth amendment. The wets say it can never be enforced; the dry say it must be enforced. In the accompanying article, Senator Blaine, a prominent wet, suggests repeal of the prohibition amendment, and Senator Harris, a dry, proposes stricter enforcement. Their interesting views follow:)

BY SENATOR JOHN J. BLAINE, Written Exclusively for International News Service.

(Copyright, 1930, by International News Service.)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—Today, January 16th, is the tenth anniversary of the prohibition regime. We have had 10 years trial of the "noble experiment" and it has failed to bring temperance to the American people.

I propose, on this anniversary of prohibition, a constitutional amendment providing for the repeal of the 18th amendment. Repeal of the amendment, in my opinion, is the best cure for the evil of prohibition.

To liberalize the Volstead act would help reestablish moderation and temperance; but the ultimate solution of the curse of prohibition will be the abandonment of prohibition.

Cites Prohibition Record.

As I recall, in the last 20 years 15 countries, including sovereign provinces, undertook prohibition. Of that number, the prohibition experiment prevails in only three, namely, the United States, Finland, and Prince Edward Island.

Each country and sovereign province that has abandoned prohibition, experimented about 10 years. After all the failure to regulate the personal customs and habits of the individual citizen, sober-thinking friends of orderly government undertook a solution of the evils that had grown up under prohibition in those countries. In all those countries that had prohibition it was found the evils of prohibition could be cured only by discarding prohibition.

Refers to Arrests.

America may well profit by their example. It was only last Monday when the president of the United States, in a message to congress, asserted that more than one-half of the arrests under the federal criminal laws were for violations of the prohibition law. This exposition speaks volumes and is conclusive proof that prohibition is a failure.

In the last nine years three presidents have been ardent advocates of prohibition enforcement. None of them succeeded in enforcement, though they had the entire enforcement machinery under their control, and they had a congress that, by an overwhelming majority, reopened to every request for more machinery of enforcement.

"TAXES" TOPIC AT LIONS' MEET

Service-Safety Director John W. Moore Speaks at Dinner in Travelers' Hotel.

Service-Safety Director John W. Moore explained the purpose of taxes in an address at the Lion's club dinner in the grill room of the Travelers' hotel last night. His subject was "Taxation."

"Taxes are as old as civilization and as necessary to the life of a nation as food is to a man," he said. "The government of a country has only one source of revenue—direct or indirect taxes.

"The majority of the taxes in this country are indirect, being derived from duties levied on different products and included in the selling prices of those commodities.

"Taxes often cause wars, which are, as a rule, commercial enterprises. They also pay for the wars after they are started. This is probably the strongest argument that can be found in favor of abolishing war.

"When taxes are not wisely spent and the collection of them is not regular, diseaster faces the government. The American revolution was the result of over-taxation. The present situation in Chicago is the result of improper use of the city funds collected by taxation."

C. OF C. DINNER GUEST

Congressman Frank Crowther, Schenectady, N. Y., tariff exponent and one of the framers of the Hawley-Smoot measure which is now before the United States senate, will be the speaker at the fourteenth annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce in the Travelers' hotel at 6 p. m., Thursday, January 30. His subject will be "The Tariff Situation."

SPEAKER SCORES TOBACCO HABIT

Rev. Virgil C. Finnell Hits Smoking by Girls; Makes 22 Talks Here.

A crowd estimated at more than 1,200 persons attended the stereopticon lecture given by the Rev. Virgil C. Finnell, Indianapolis, national lecturer for the No-Tobacco League of America, in the high school auditorium last evening, in which he condemned the tobacco habit.

The meeting climaxed a three-day campaign made by the Rev. Mr. Finnell in the East Liverpool district during which he made 22 talks before the 5,000 school children in East Liverpool and Newell. He also addressed several parent-teacher organizations.

He assailed billboard and newspaper advertising by cigarette manufacturers whose "only desire is to exploit girls and women to satisfy their greed," he said.

"The girl whose picture appears in the billboard advertising of a popular cigarette has an ironclad agreement which prohibits her to use tobacco," he declared.

The Rev. Mr. Finnell left today for Uniontown, Pa. His visit to East Liverpool was sponsored by the Church of the Nazarene.

UNION TRANSIT LINE SOLD.

STEUBENVILLE, O., Jan. 16.—The sale of the Union Transit company, eastern Ohio bus line operators, to the West Penn Traction company was announced by William Boyd, manager, today. The deal makes the West Penn Traction company the largest bus line owner in the tri-state section. The Union Transit company formerly operated the Pittsburgh-Akron bus line through East Liverpool.

PROVIDE FUNDS IN RUM FIGHT, IS DRY APPEAL

Senator Harris Calls For Enforcement Of Amendment.

ANSWERS FOES

Law Never Given Fair Trial, He Declares.

Written Exclusively for International News Service.

(Copyright, 1930, By International News Service.)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16. — In these ten years, the prohibition law has never been given a fair trial and congress has never appropriated sufficient money to make it a success. Its enemies have claimed the law was a complete failure, and tried to make this and other laws unpopular. It is the height of folly to try to enforce this law with the meagre appropriation in the past with the thousands of miles of boundary lines such as Mexico and Canada, as well as of our seacoast on the Pacific and Atlantic, to say nothing of the enforcement in 2,500 counties and several thousand towns in the United States. Congress certainly will appropriate any amount of money necessary to bring real enforcement.

Urges Speedy Trials.

The most important thing to be accomplished and which would give the greatest relief is to arrange for speedy trials and this could be accomplished by a bill which I introduced three years ago and again during the present session, which would allow any one charged with violating the law with his consent to be taken immediately before a United States commissioner and have the case against him tried. Nine out of 10 times they would plead guilty when tried immediately, but if they are allowed to stay in jail for some time, at great expense to the government, or out on bond, some shrewd lawyer convinces him that if he will pay him a fee he could get him off without any fine or imprisonment. United States commissioners would handle these promptly and save great expense to the government by keeping the violators out of jail or the penitentiary.

Lauds Hoover Recommendation.

I have tried for years to get an increased appropriation for the enforcement of the prohibition law, and if we had appropriated the amount needed and secured the number and class of men required for this work, the law would have had a fair trial. The people of the country have become accustomed to the federal government enforcing laws of this kind and the states will not do it except in cooperation with the government.

I was pleased with President Hoover's recommendations and sincerely hope they may be carried out and that congress will appropriate sufficient sums of money to really make an honest effort to enforce the law.

CHICAGO BOMB CAUSES PANIC

Dynamite Blast, Aimed at Home of Reputed Political Czar, Wrecks Apartment Building.

By International News Service.

CHICAGO, Jan. 16.—A powerful dynamite bomb, aimed at the home of City Collector Morris Eller, reputed political czar of the "Bloody Twentieth" ward, early today wrecked the rear of a three story apartment building and threw occupants of the building into a panic.

The blast hurled Eller and his wife and their maid from their beds. The Ellers escaped uninjured, but the Negro maid, Annie Semmel, was badly cut and bruised.

This, the second bomb aimed at Eller in the last three years, wrecked the rear portion of the building, hurling occupants of the other apartments from their beds and showering them with pieces of broken glass.

STONY RIDGE CASHIER SHOT; BANK LOOTED

Three Bandits Get $4,300 in Noon Holdup.

FLEE IN COUPE

Clarence Menter Fires Six Bullets in Battie.

By International News Service.

BOWLING GREEN, O., Jan. 16.—Clarence Menter, cashier of the Farmers' Savings bank at Stony Ridge, 12 miles northeast of here, was seriously wounded in a gun battle with three thugs who held up and robbed the bank of $4,300 shortly before noon today.

The bandits made their get-away in a large coupe, and headed for Toledo. Menter fired six shots at the speeding car, but none of his bullets found a target, it is believed.

Two of the men entered the bank, while the third stayed in the car and kept the motor running, according to Menter's story to police. When the men entered, Menter was in the rear of the bank, getting money out of a safe.

As he turned around at the sound of the bandit's steps, one of the bandits pointed a revolver at him and ordered him to open the inside drawers of the safe.

The thugs secured $800 in change and $3,500 in currency, a check-up by bank officials revealed.

As the bandits reached their automobile, Menter seized a gun and gave chase. The trio returned the fire of Menter's revolver and one of the bullets struck him in the leg.

The driver of an oil truck chased the fleeing men to Elmore, where he was forced to give up.

It was the second robbery of the Farmers' Savings bank in less than four months.

SCHOOL LEADER KIWANIS GUEST

Supt. Herbert Means Compares Efficiency of Modern Education With That of Old Era.

Citing the rapid strides that have been made in the profession of teaching since the days of the little red school house, Superintendent Herbert G. Means compared modern instruction and its efficiency with that of the old era as he addressed Kiwanis club members today at their noon luncheon in the Travelers' hotel grill.

Supt. Means pointed out that as a result of statutes requiring a more comprehensive schooling for the prospective teacher, education standards throughout the state are rapidly being raised and teaching itself is asuming a plane approaching those of the medical and other professions.

J. N. Fibley presided. Prof. Hugh Laughlin led club singing.

POOL CASH FOR LEGAL BATTLE

Seventeen Elyria Liquor Law Violators Plan Test Case as Move Toward Release.

By International News Service.

ELYRIA, O., Jan. 16.—Seventeen liquor law violators, serving out fines ranging from $300 to $1,000 in county jail here, were preparing to pool their resources today for a legal battle to obtain their release after serving six months.

The prisoners contend that under no circumstances are they required to serve more than six months for a misdemeanor. They base their contentions on the opinion of County Prosecutor Don Myers who recently made a statement to that effect.

Sheriff Clarence Adams, however, claims the prisoners must continue to serve out their fines at the rate of $1.50 a day. He is of the opinion that he cannot release the prisoners without an order from court.

Meantime, the prisoners are preparing a test case of the first of their number eligible for release, by hiring an attorney and procuring a writ of habeas corpus.

By International News Service.

PHOENIX, Arizona, Jan. 16. — Held in the county jail following their capture after a hot gun fight, a woman who is believed to be Irene Schroeder and two male companions today awaited identification by a Pennsylvania officer who is en route here by airplanes.

Mrs. Schroeder and one of her companions, Clem Dague, were sought in connection with the slaying of Corporal Brady Paul, a member of the Pennsylvania state constabulary, near Butler, Pa.

The third member of the trio, who claims to be Joe F. Wells, denied that he was J. W. Crawford, Mrs. Schroeder's brother, also sought in connection with the killing of the officer.

Denies Her Identity.

The woman claims that Wells was picked up by herself and Dague while traveling through Texas.

The trio was captured after they kidnaped Joseph Chapman, deputy sheriff, at Florence. Later they fought a pistol duel with officers at Chandler, where Chapman and Lee Wright, another deputy, were wounded.

Fleeing into the mountains and taking refuge in the wild country, the trio, after a brisk exchange of shots, was finally captured.

HINT MISTRIAL IN DORR CASE

Woman Tells Chicago Judge That Murder Jurors Revel in "Soft Drink Parlors."

(Copyright, 1930, by International News Service).

CHICAGO, Jan. 16.—An amazing story, that jurors in the murder trial of Samuel Howard Dorr were revelling unguarded in a "soft drink parlor," an establishment where liquor was said to have been served, was told here today by a woman to the presiding judge, Harry B. Miller, in his chambers before the resumption of the trial.

The story, if substantiated, was such that court followers felt the defense would demand and obtain a mis-trial with dismissal of the jury just a few hours before the case was to be in the jury's hands for a verdict.

AVOID THAT FUTURE SHADOW*

By refraining from over-indulgence

You men who would keep trim and fit . . . you women who covet the tantalizing curves of the truly modern figure—when tempted to do yourself too well, light a Lucky instead. Be moderate—be moderate in all things, even in smoking. Eat healthfully but not immoderately. When your eyes are bigger than your stomach, light a Lucky instead. Coming events cast their shadows before. Avoid that future shadow by avoiding over-indulgence if you would maintain that lithe, youthful figure.

Lucky Strike, the finest Cigarette you ever smoked, made of the finest tobacco—The Cream of the Crop—"IT'S TOASTED." Everyone knows that heat purifies and so "TOASTING" not only removes impurities but adds to the flavor and improves the taste.

"Coming events cast their shadows before"

"It's toasted"

*Be Moderate! . . . Don't jeopardize the modern form by drastic diets, harmful reducing girdles, fake reducing tablets or other quack "anti-fat" remedies condemned by the Medical profession! Millions of dollars each year are wasted on these ridiculous and dangerous nostrums. Be Sensible! Be Moderate! We do not represent that smoking Lucky Strike Cigarettes will bring modern figures or cause the reduction of flesh. We do declare that when tempted to do yourself too well, if you will "Reach for a Lucky" instead, you will thus avoid over-indulgence in things that cause excess weight and, by avoiding over-indulgence, maintain a modern, graceful form.

ALBERTO SALVI HERE JAN. 26

Harpist Will Appear In Civic Music Concert.

Alberto Salvi, said to be the "World's greatest harpist," will appear at the Ceramic theater at 3 p. m., Sunday, January 26, in the second of the Civic Music association's course of attractions for the 1929-30 season.

Seats for the concert will be reserved at the theater box office at a date to be announced later. The concert will be open only to members of the association and their friends.

Thirty years ago, Alberto Salvi was born in Venice. His father was a celebrated Italian harp maker and the child grew up in the great shadowy reaches of the elder Salvi's shop. When the other children were out bouncing balls or swimming or doing any one of the things young boys love to do, Alberto hid away in his father's shop and coaxed lovely sounds from the huge instruments.

His father was an understanding man with the heart of a true artist and he perceived in his young son an affection for the harp that amounted almost to a religion. He built the boy a miniature harp. When only seven years old, he was mastering the early technique of the instrument and by the time he had reached his 14th birthday, he was studying seriously.

At the age of thirteen Salvi was a tall, slender slip of a boy. "The spirit of the harp" he was then called by his town folk and it was then that he won his first distinction,—the Royal scholarship of the Naples Royal conservatory, in a nation-wide competion.

For a family of his limited means, as many of the old Venetian gen . are, this scholarship was like a godsend.

In the fifth year of Salvi's course at the conservatory, the director of that institution wrote to the Ministry of Arts in Rome about him—"He has acquired all the knowledge, both of the practice and theory of music, that falls within the eight year curriculm," he said.

Rome sent back special examinations for Salvi, and the result was he was awarded the eight year diploma at the end of the five years.

Salvi decided to try his luck in America. He had a few relatives in Chicago and to them he went, accepting the first position that offered itself, that of harpist in a theater orchestra. The management soon discovered that they had extraordinary talent in their midst and requested a solo every night.

One evening after Salvi had been playing there for a month, he was approached by a gentleman who he had never seen before, the representative of a New York concert management, who engaged him for a concert tour. Since then Alberto Salvi's career has been a triumphal journey from one state into another.

"Three Beakers" And "Hamburger Bours" Being Renovated For Summer's Trade.

By International News Service.

STOCKHOLM — The "Three Beakers" and "Hamburger Bours," two of Stockholm's oldest restaurants, the first dating from 1688 or perhaps even further back, and the second at least from 1753, are being renovated for the coming Stockholm exhibition of decorative arts next summer.

Together with "Den Gyldene Freden" (The Golden Peace), the old wine cellar back of the royal palace in which the 18th century poet, Carl Mikael Bellman, used to improvise his drinking songs, they are the most venerable of the city's many eating places and frequented by American and other foreigners. "Den Gyldene Freden" was rehabilitated some years ago by the Swedish artist, Anders Zorn and the income donated to the Swedish Academy which annually awards the Nobel Prize in Literature. Ballad singers still appear there informally.

Regarding Grand Opera

It is one thing to retire after a lifetime of satisfactory effort; it is another thing to merely withdraw, giving an impression that there is an ulterior motive. Frances Alda, last of the grand old guard of New York's world-famous prima donnas, has left the Metropolitan Opera house in the latter spirit.

What she has done, from her point of view, is to attain her operatic majority. Her "retirement" means merely that she seeks fresh fields and pastures new. She leaves the opera for the radio and the talking pictures and she leaves with few kind words for the art which has brought her world fame. "Without great singers—and I certainly do not consider modern singers the equals of the earlier ones—we cannot give the great musical masterpieces."

And why are there not singers in 1930 capable of singing the great operas to which Madame Alda refers? Her reasons are simple, but pointed. "Singers do not work hard enough and they are pushed too fast. They are the victims of our American policy of hustle and rush."

These observations, coming from one so eminently qualified to make them are interesting, even after they have been properly discounted. Madame Alda, unconsciously, has yielded to the common temptation and inquired, "Ah, where are the roses of yesterday?" They are gone, of course, but others still on the hopeful side of life, may see roses just as beautiful in their places. Madame Alda does not and she may be right.

It is certainly true that opera and the characteristic American bustle do not mix. The singer eager to win acclaim at too early an age will not help the ultimate standing of the opera and will not be willing to attempt those works demanding extraordinary preparation and skill. Thus passes Mozart, thus is legato lost—thus is respect for the singer and the opera eventually lessened.

Madame Alda started on her career at a time when the opera stood high in favor. An evening spent in listening to great artists singing beautiful music was considered the epitome of entertainment. Since that period, there have been many changes, until today, confronted with the possibility of many amusement choices, the American may choose musical comedy, drama, or the movies and limit his grand opera to sporadic intervals of super-imposed culture. Not all Americans are classed thus to be sure, but there are enough to make a dent in the box office. Madame Alda herself realizes this and advises those interested in acting acrobatics to go to the theater—not to grand opera. The public has taken her advice seriously and has yielded to the multifold urges to find its amusement in a wider field. Madame Alda herself is following the crowd and expects to carry on in the hearts of her public by the radio and the talking pictures.

It is the trend of times.

One of Chicago's bold, bad bandits fired five times at a policeman at a distance of ten feet and hit him but once, a mere touch on one of the policeman's elbows. We are beginning to understand why the Chicago gangsters have armed themselves with machine guns and sawed-off shotguns.

Russia and China have stopped fighting to find out if possible just what the next bone of contention will be.

Psittacosis

The eye of suspicion has been cast on Poor Polly frequently in recent weeks as reports of human cases of "parrot fever," or psittacosis were made in various sections.

The symptoms of this disease in humans resembles typhoid fever complicated by a germ infection of the lungs resembling pneumonia. In parrots the germ seems to confine itself to the digestive organs, but in human beings centers its attack in the respiratory organs. Fatal cases nearly always end as a variety of pneumonia.

There has been one general misapprehension concerning this strange disease and that is concerning its previous appearance in this county. Contrary to dispatches, it has been discovered here at least once before by Dr. G. McClintock, of New York City, who five years ago reported what amounted to a small-scale epidemic of the disease originating in a shipment of parrots and extending from them to human beings. Dr. A. P. Thomas, of Birmingham, England, recently reported a series of cases, many of which, as usual, were fatal.

Although the germ which causes psittacosis is probably an old one in parrots, and perhaps in human beings also, it was not until the winter of 1892, in Paris, that physicians gave it marked attention. Paris was then just recovering from an epidemic of influenza. The cases of severe and fatal fever which began appearng in the fall at first were mistaken for a recurrence of the more familiar disease, but several Parisian experts, notably Professor Dublief, soon perceived that parrots kept as pets were connected in some manner with these new "influenza" cases. It was but a few weeks thereafter when the real nature of the disease was made clear and its germ was isolated. This germ, it is now believed, is closely related to those which cause the more prevalent varieties of "food sickness," disorders once classed under the now abandoned term of "ptomaine poisoning." There seems to be a remote relationship, too, to the better known bacillus which accounts for typhoid fever.

It is probably not to be expected that the cases reported will result in any widespread epidemic, for the germ seems really not much at home in this climate, or in the human body for that matter. Yet, it is worth remembering that a sick parrot is an object of danger, not to be coddled or approached closer than may be necessary and that a mysterious typhoid-like fever in beings who have handled sick parrots is a danger sign by no means to be ignored.

The Cincinnati Enquirer remarks that a "prominent, newly-married California pair will now proceed to live as Helen Wills." A pun like that should be made actionable.

Back Door Approaches

An important personage refusing entrance to a caller at the front door and asking favors of the same caller at the back door is an absurdity, but the United States recently has done that very thing by consenting to let the secretary of the interior "unofficially" ask the Soviet government to aid in the search for Ben Eielson and Carl Borland, American aviators lost in Siberia. Since this pair of American citizens was lost while trying to rescue the crew of an ice-bound vessel, common decency required that every possible effort be made in their behalf.

It is not the first instance of such procedure on the part of the United States government. When the Kellogg teaty was presented to Russia, the French were called upon to lend an ambassador, which was ridiculous considering the nature of the document. When the Soviet flyers landed in Seattle, the common people turned out en masse to hail their mighty achievement. There were dreadful moments when it was feared the hardy aviators might go to Washington, but the catastrope was averted by some tugging on well-oiled wires.

When the United States took upon itself the responsibility of acting as arbiter in the matter of the Russo-Chinese war in Manchuria, the French were kind enough to again offer their services as a go-between and the sharp rebuff with which this country's solicitude was greeted must have afforded a great deal of unique amusement to the worthy diplomat who had the pleasure of forwarding it to Washington.

As the last link in this ignominious chain of back door approaches, this government appears to another whom it refuses to recognize and asks a favor. This time a news agency is the middleman.

It is a fairly effective way of getting things, but Uncle Sam looks foolish while he is doing it.

A survey is said to show that the Middle West was not much hurt by the Wall Street crash, some weeks since, but the report may be due to the aversion of Middle-Westerners to admitting that they were suckers.

GERMANY'S WISDOM.

Germany could not have given the world a better Christmas gift than her referendum defeat of the so-called liberty bill. Here is new evidence—if any were needed—that republican Germany will continue to cooperate with the other nations for European reconstruction and peace.

The referendum was forced on the unwilling country by the extreme Nationalists, who would revive war hatreds. The nominal purpose of the bill was to prevent "the enslavement of the German nation." It instructed the Berlin government to notify all foreign powers that Germany's "enforced acknowledgement of war guilt in the treaty of Versailles is contrary to historical truth, is based on false premises and is not binding in international law."

Had the bill stopped with that, it doubtless would have carried in a popular referendum. A large majority of Germans deny and bitterly resent the sole war guilt theory.

The teeth of the bill were in the following provision:

"No further financial burdens or obligations based on the war guilt acknowledgement shall be assumed, inclusive of those arising from the recommendations of the Paris reparations experts."

Thus the main purpose of the Nationalists and their referendum was to kill the Young plan. They failed. Their success would have resulted in European economic chaos, perhaps worse.

By polling only about 6,000,000 of the required 21,000,000 on this issue with its pseudo-patriotic appeal, the Nationalists have demonstrated that they do not represent the German people.

The new Germany is not looking backward, but ahead. The leaders of the new Germany are not the Hugenbergs and Hitlers of this defeated referendum, but such world figures as Einstein, Mann, Eckener and the lamented Stresemann.—Columbus Citizen.

New York Day By Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—Wilson Mizner called it "New Yorkitis"—a delusion that one can live only on Manhattan Island. He was himself forced to shake it off by joining an Alaskan gold rush and mushing through snows. And New York has seen little of him since.

There are thousands so hypnotized by the Gotham glitter. They prefer to be the proverbial lamp posts on Broadway rather than go to any other city and be somebody of importance. They are remindful of punch-drunk fighters refusing to take the count.

Nowhere do people take so many clips on the chin—and smile. New York, no matter the vicissitudes, is the top of the world to them and any pl[illegible] else is merely camping out. Strangely enough, once they get away for awhile they rarely come back to town.

Yet the majority cannot make the break. The White Way has a vast army of familiars whose lives are spent marking time. They are perpetually buoyed by the bromide of super optimists: "Something is boun dto turn up." The fact it doesn't never dampens their ardor.

They manage somehow to live for months and often years while chasing the elusive rainbow. The flimsiest promise of a job around the corner is all they need to carry on. Anyone of them can paint a rosy picture of the future without a sou in his pocket.

It is from such drifters that Broadway recruits its harmless cadgers. Bachelor friends have spare rooms and they park there and make themselves useful by serving as "Fridays." There are so many lonely bachelors that many welcome such companionship.

In the same fashion they acquire cast off clothes. Around the speakeasies and chop houses they are so engagingly amiable they can pick up "coffee, cakes and cigarettes." And with a few drinks always begin bragging—the pitiful braggadocio of a hopeless inferiority.

In each room of a new hotel is a warning card printed in red hanging where it will be seen where the patrons turns off the night lamp. it reads: "Be certain your cigarette or cigar end is extinguished." Three deaths in the past four months have resulted from such negligence.

In another inn push buttons by the bedside illuminate the wall clocks in all the rooms.

The beautiful mannikins of the dressmaking establishments are picking up extra change by piloting gentleman friends into luncheon places in the Fashionable Fifties. They receive fifteen per cent of the check.

Such beauties are also able to profit by satisfying the ache of withering Romeos to appear in public with their types of well dressed and vibrant femininity. It is a strictly business arrangement. They wil act as luncheon companions for a fee of $10—and, of course, have luncheon gratis.

For those fed up with the single names of Emil, Antoine, Louis and Pierre as hair cutters, there are two welcome reliefs on lower Sixth avenue. One bobbing parlor is conducted by Ike Cohen and another by Patrick McLaughlin.

Al Woods always greets Sammy Shipman with "Hello Cecil" and is in return greeted with "Hello Rolfe."

And one of the most irritating blows I know calls me "Mr. Ashworth." A half dozen others address me as "Art." Nothing makes a fellow feel so inconspicuous as to be called by a wrong name.

"You are on the lookout for strange names," writes one signing himself Ichabod Ilif Awk. "What do you thing of mine?"

He's probably kin to the Awks in the comic strips.

How To Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

MENTAL health means the ability to adjust one's self successfully to economic and social needs, just as physical health means that one is fully adjusted environment.

The present-day study of mental health is an effort, not only to find out just what is normal human behavior, the propert treatment of crime and insanity, and the failure of meting out cure and punishment, but of finding the causes of mental ill health, so that future generations may be protected. This is important because there is a constant increase in the number of people suffering from mental ills in this country today.

At a recent meeting of the New York Academy of Medicine, Mr. Clifford W. Beers, founder of the National Committee for Mental Hygiene gave the following interesting statement:

He said that there are about 400,000 patients suffering from mental ills at the present time, as compared with 187,000 twenty years ago. The number is increasing at the rate of about 10,000 a year. This is a very grave problem for public consideration.

Mr. Beers declares that this great increase calls for the provision of more hospitals and medical care than the country now has. Provision must be made to cope with this very great menace to the public health for generations to come. Intensive efforts must be made to prevent the thousands of curable cases from becoming incurable through neglect and ignorance.

These statistics are interesting to every layman because the burden of care of these incurable mental patients will fall on the taxpayer, as well as on the family and State. Here, again, we see the necessity for preventive measures to protect the public health and to safeguard future generations.

Recent research brings much of the blame of crime, insanity and failure back to the home. Mental hygienists are stressing one great point, and that is in most cases of extreme nervousness in children, in many cases of insanity, as well as in almost all cases of conduct disorder, the trail leads directly back to the home and parents. They agree that the final responsibility for the mental health of the race lies in the home.

Fortunate is the child whose parents appreciate the importance of a good start in life, and are able to give him a heritage of sound physical and mental health.

Answers to Health Queries.

Peggy. Q.—Is —— reducing—is it harmless? I would like to lose about eight pounds. I am 17 years of age, 4 feet 11 in. tall. What should I weigh?

A.—I am not familiar with the preparation therefore cannot advise you along these lines. If you cut down on sweets and starches and indulge in systematic exercise you should lose weight. You should weigh about 110 pounds.

MRS. F. L. L. Q—What do you advise for falling hair? My husband recently had an operation and his hair has been coming out ever since

A.—The state of the health plays an important part in the condition of both hair and scalp. The general rules for good health coupled with a good, stimulating hair tonic should bring about results.

E. M. Q.—I am not underweight but I get very cold, especially my feet. What is the cause of this?

A.—You are probably troubled with poor circulation due to a run-down state of health. Although you are not underweight, it is possible you are not in the best of health. Build up your entire system and you will benefit generally.

J. M. G. Q. — Would smoking cause a young woman's face to break out in pimples?

A.—No. This condition is usually due to faulty diet and improper elimination. For full particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

S. T. H. Q.—What causes broken veins in the legs?

A.—Varicose veins are caused by increase tension in the veins, due to either external pressure, some obstruction of the deep veins, or, as in many cases, to habitual overexertion, such as long standing.

MISS B. E. M. Q.—Would it be possible to consume a gallon of milk a day and gain weight rapidly.

A.—One quart a day should be sufficient. Eat plenty of good nourishing foods, besides milk.

P. K. Q.—What should a girl of 17 years, ft. 2 inches tall weigh?

A.—She should weigh about 115 pounds.

M. B. Q.—What should a girl aged 16, 5 ft. 2 inches tall weigh, also a girl 18, 5 ft. 3, and a woman aged 54, 5 ft. tall?

A. They should weigh respectively about 114, 120 and 132 pounds.

T. J. B. Q.—What should a woman weigh who is 44 years old and 5 feet 4 inches tall?

A.—For her age and height she should weigh about 141 pounds.

MRS. W. L. C. Q.—What is the cause of sciatica?

A.—In females this condition is often due to the pressure of a tumor.

MARGARET. Q. — What will straighten a slight curvature of the spine?

A.—Consult an orthopedist for treatment.

G. A. A. Q.—What causes a fistula and what treatment is advised? Would an operation prevent further trouble?

A.—The trouble is due to injury to the tissue of the involved parts. Operation is usually successful in clearing up disturbance of this nature.

The Reviewing Stand

By TOM T. JONES

HALE and hearty after an interim that almost reaches 60 years living on the same spot which happens to be at Williamsport, near the country home of Judge W. H. Lones, William H. Crawford, now 78 years of age, has seen boats plying the roadbed of the old Sandy and Beaver Canal just across the road from his home. By now he has seen this roadway so reconstructed as to give it almost railway dimensions when it is noted that on occasions in the midst of the other traffic upon it trailers are attached to the cars passing.

Interest in the spot is lent by the still visible ruins of the old mill which long functioned on the banks of the canal a stone's throw from his home. It was erected by his grand uncle, the late William H. Crawford, in 1808. It was accordingly built just ten years after East Liverpool was settled. For years it was one of the important activities of Columbiana county. To it for miles around farmers brought their grist for grinding.

The old mill was abandoned about 20 years ago. For years Mr. Crawford operated it. There were times when it had a capacity of two barrels a day. For over one hundred years the mill has been the property of some member of the Crawford family. In the early days the mill operators were permitted to take out one-tenth of that ground for the grinding. From the remaining 54 pounds of a bushel of wheat a farmer would be given 40 pounds of flour, 12 of bran and two of middlings.

IN discussing evolutionary methods of milling Mr. Crawford declared roller mills of the present day give 25 pounds of flour only for the single bushel of wheat brought for grinding. Steam mills, he explained, were permitted one-eighth for grinding but he avers there is no such scale in force for roller mills.

One of Mr. Crawford's prized possessions is the old ironhand made scale that was made in Lisbon by a blacksmith, a Mr. Sharpe, and which, though 121 years preserved, is still as good as when it was initially used. It was constructed in seven different pieces and has the capacity for weighing as much as 450 pounds.

Mr. Crawford recalls numerous attempts throughout the years of having a railway constructed along the canal route and by his home. Promoters called on him often in the interest of such a departure. One of these he recalls as an educated Indian. He believes that with the new road passing his place and the great use of it by motor cars that the approximate benefits of a railway are being vouchafed Williamsport.

Swimming with William McKinley used to be a summer pastime of Mr. Crawford. No bathing suits were worn in those days. They used to repair to Beaver near Grim's bridge for the purpose. He and the late president and congressman knew each other well.

WHEN he was but six years of age Mr. Crawford saw the first train pass through East Liverpool. This was in 1857. He relates that he with relatives stood on a curve and watched it, enroute to Pittsburgh, approach. The spectators had the feeling that it would leave the track and strike them. So they moved back. He avers that at the Philadelphia exposition in 1878 he saw trains that reminded him of the initial one passing the Pottery City.

Eight years later, when Mr. Crawford saw in East Liverpool another train passing which arrested his attention. It was draped in black. It was the morning after Abraham Lincoln had ben assassinated. It was the railway management's way of showing grief at the tragic passing of the Emancipator.

During last summer for an interim Mr. Crawford appeared lost for then he was experiencing the unusual sensation of being without a horse of his own for the first time in sixty years. During a heated spell of the period his driving horse fell in the shafts of his buggy and succumbed. He was immediately given offers for other animals. However, the attack of sunstroke to the animal, left him with none of his own long enough for him to realize a lack that had not been his since shortly after attaining his majority.

ANOTHER arresting attraction at the curve in Williamsport is the spreading sycamore tree that towers over the site of the old mill. It is said to be several hundred years old. Mr. Crawford declares that the late Philander Gaston, who lived to be 96 years of age, often related that his own father, who reached his 76-year, used to tell him that this sycamore tree was as large as it is now when he first saw it.

The tree ever attracts attention of motorists. It is fully 60 feet high and has a spread of some 100 feet. Its trunk base is about six feet in diameter with a circumference of eighteen feet. The old turbine wheel of the abandoned mill near by is still visible. The mill itself was a two-story structure. It was thirty feet high and had a width of forty feet. There was a garret at its top.

MR. CRAWFORD has vivid recollections of the day the rebel Gen. John H. Morgan was captured at West Point a few miles from his home. The event occurred on Sunday, July 26, 1863. He recalls that he was in church at Clarkson. Messengers bringing the news of the coming of the Confederate leader sent the men home for their guns. And boys of which he was one were rushed to making bullets from melted lead. He said that in a short time he and some companions had made three or four gallons of them.

During his long life Mr. Crawford declares that he has never used liquor or tobacco. He confides that he drinks but one cup of coffee per day usually. He claims to be a sparing eater and not given greatly to the use of meat.

He remembers when gas was first procured in Williamsport in 1860. For intervals thereafter small quantities were obtained in and about the vicinity. From time to time wells are sunk in the neighborhood.

More than half a century ago Mr. Crawford began advocating that the ideal way to reach the northern section of the county was by the way of Williamsport. He has been permitted to live and see the consummation of his contention. Among those who have been gladdened by this fact are the present board of county commissioners who in the performance of their duties carried out the project that long ago penetrated his mind.

BOOKS were among the gifts which filled the stockings of some East Liverpool men. These, ever since, have been greatly regaled by the reading of them. One of them received a number of volumes on African and jungle exploration, themes which ever whet his interest. Deep in the departures of cannibals and the head hunters of a tropical clime the rigors of winter have meant little to him in recent days.

MRS. ALBERTO REARDON, of the Youngstown School of Music and former East Liverpool resident, was heard recently by several local persons over the radio from a Cincinnati station when, as the president of the Ohio Music Teachers association, she spoke on "Music Credits' during a session of the Federation of Ohio clubs in the Queen City. Despite some static prevailing her voice was recognizable. A musical program accompanied her appearance on the air.

SUSTAINED interest continues in many sections of the country in the McGuffey readers which a great percentage of the present population everywhere studied to a more or less degree in their school days. Indeed, since the fall and winter weather has set in this can be said to have reached unusual dimensions. Letters to various papers by readers have served to recall them to such an extent that in many places the books, when available, are being read again with avidity.

Because William Holmes McGuffey, the compiler of these readers, was born in the adjoining county of Washington, Pa., Pittsburgh admirers of these volumes are planning the organization of a McGuffey society. In New York City there have been held McGuffey dinners with the banquet hall transformed into a replica of a schoolroom during McGuffey days from which the programs have been from the McGuffey readers. One Pittsburgh woman has issued a challenge of reciting from memory the poetry that appeared in the McGuffey readers.

SINCE William McGuffey, following the partial attainment of his education, taught his first school in or about Calcutta, just four miles to the north of this city, it would accordingly seem singularly fitting that such a society might appropriately be formed in East Liverpool. There would be a significance to such a departure under the circumstances. Perhaps the getting together for a dinner of some of the admirers of the material in the McGuffey readers would pave the way to such an organization. There are in the city men and women who have themselves taught schools in which these readers were utilized. Perhaps some of these may lead the way towards following in the steps of those now enlisted in the cause of thus perpetuating the influence that came from a study of the contents of these books.

JOHN HASSLER, long an engineer and surveyor in and about Columbiana county, has been engaged recently in finding the lines that center Beaver creek in the locality of Fredericktown. To do this he has penetrated much of the territory which it touches in that locality. He has thus become impressed with the lay of the land thereabouts and the type of trees that obtain on and about it.

He has often found it necessary to visit Round Knob in Madison township, the highest point in the county and which looms as but 83 feet lower than Campbell's hill, near Bellefontaine, the highest elevation in the state of Ohio, the summit of which he has also on occasions visited. The latter is 1,530 feet and the former 1,447 feet high. Round Knob is perceptible to dwellers in sections of the Northside of East Liverpool during all seasons of the year.

HASSLER, in recent months has located the various stones of the different surveys that have been made which mark the spots that make for the dividing lines between Ohio, West Virginia and Pennsylvania. Some of these are yet in a wonderful state of preservation.

There are some of these stones that have crumbled somewhat. In some instances they have been utilized as corners of fences or otherwise have been brought into use. Those between Pennsylvania and Ohio carry the letter "P" upon their eastern side and that of "O" upon their western side. In some instances he found that one or both of these letters had been worn away.

The first of these state boundary lines were made about the year 1770, Hassler declares. Then there was another made about 1780 and again in 1882. The marking stones have bases about fifteen inches square. In the three states the tops are differently shaped, each taking a peculiar form by which the commonwealth's identity may be easily disclosed.

On some of these stones the name of Endicott appears. He was doubtless the man in charge of one of these early surveys.

THE THEATER

JURY ROOM SECRETS ARE BARED IN "THE LOVE RACKET" STORY

Dorothy Mackaill Winner over 11 Men in State Film.

From the tense drama of the court room scene such as that which provided the highlights in "The Trial of Mary Dugan" and other similar pictures where were revealed the operations of justice, or injustice, as the case may have been, depending upon the plot, "The Love Racket," current film at the State theater, goes even a step beyond these confines to bare the secrets of the jury room.

Here the blond Dorothy Mackaill, alone with 11 men—one of whom is her fiancee, Sidney Blackmer, holds in her hands the fate of another girl, Myrtle Stedman, accused of murdering the man who betrayed her.

The trial of the girl had brought to Miss Mackaill a spectre out of the past—the grim realization that this girl whose life was sought by the state in expiation of her crime against society had done only what Miss Mackaill, herself dishonored by the slain man, had once attempted. To tell the story of her unfortunate relations with the man, Edmund Burns, she would necessarily have to besmudge her own character, but, perhaps, would sway the jury's sentiment. Behind those locked doors where issues of life and death are decided, Miss Mackaill made her decision. And there is the "punch" of "The Love Racket."

Miss Mackaill, to start the story, had once fallen in love with Burns, the philanderer. On one pretext or another, he had taken her to a mountain cabin, where they spent the summer, as man and wife, upon his promise to wed her in the fall. Ultimately realizing she has been tricked, she attempts to kill Burns but the shot goes wild.

She goes to Europe to forget it. Later, as a business woman, she is loved by Sidney Blackmer. Loving in return but shamed by the memories of the past, she refuses a response to Blackmer's ardent wooing until, eventually, she reveals to Blackmer's married sister her single sin. The latter is very sensible about the whole thing. So Dorothy consents to the wedding.

But here the villian is shot and killed (Miss Stedman's trigger finger being quicker than Dorothy's) at an inopportune moment for the lovers, as well as for himself, obviously.

Then the trial, and Miss Mackaill and her fiance are called for jury, the former being unaware of the identity of the slain man.

"The Love Racket" was a successful stage play under the title, "The Woman on the Jury," and adheres closely to that version in its present form—F. J. W.

RUDY VALLEE SINGS WAY INTO HEARTS OF CROWDS AT CERAMIC

Marie Dressler Also Steps to Front in "Vagabond Lover."

Rudy Vallee, of Connecticut Yankee orchestra and radio fame, and Marie Dressler, who was starred with Charles Chaplin in "Tillie's Punctured Romance," many years ago, share honors in "The Vagabond Lover" which played to three large crowds at the Ceramic theater yesterday in opening a four-day run.

Marie, who began her stage career more than 40 years ago, returned to Broadway, after stealing Chaplin's thunder and was practically unknown in the movies until she again appeared in "The Hollywood Revue." After completing this picture she was assigned the part of Mrs. Whitehall, a society matron in the Vallee film.

The Vagabond lover is Rudy's first picture. He plays opposite Sally Blane, who takes the part of Jean, society butterfly and niece of Mrs. Whitehall. Other members of the cast are Charles Sellon, who plays the part of a country chief of police; Malcolm White as Ted Grant, saxophone teacher, who, in the picture, conducts a mail order saxophone school; Norman Peck, Danny O'Shea, Eddie Nugent, Nella Walker and Allan Roscoe.

Five song hits are introduced by Vallee and his orchestra in the production, although the number, "The Vagabond Lover," is featured. Other songs which Vallee sings are "A Little Kiss Each Morning," "I Love You. Believe Me, I Love You," "If You Were the Only Girl" and "I'll Be Reminded of You."

Rudy poses as Ted Grant, noted orchestra leader, and occupies Grant's home in a stylish section of Long Island during his absence. He and his orchestra are engaged for a benefit concert, arranged by Mrs. Whitehall, but just before the show is given Grant, in New York City, hears of the plan and wires police to arrest Vallee.

The police arrive just as Vallee and his orchestra are taking part in the benefit which is being broadcast over the radio. Grant and his manager also reach the scene about the same time. At the conclusion of the show, Grant realizes Vallee's ability as an entertainer and refuses to prosecute him. Of course everything ends happily when Sally Blane whom Vallee has learned to love while impersonating Grant, steps into the garden while the orchestra plays "The Vagabond Lover."

A talking comedy, featuring "Our Gang;" two vaudeville pictures and Paramount news reel also in sound, complete the bill.—H. J. K.

EGG DISPUTE ECHO OF USE OF FOWLS IN M'CORMACK SUPPORT

Solomon or Gas Mask Needed in Row in Hollywood

By DOROTHY HERZOG.

Copyright, 1930, Premier Syndicate, Inc.

HOLLYWOOD—A Solomon is in demand. List: For barnyard atmosphere and noise, a number of chickens (feathery variety) were engaged to prance. They supported John McCormack. The chickens were engaged for the week, at fifty cents per. Studio life in no way interfered with their egg laying capacity. They laid. It's an old custom. The owner claims the eggs belong to him. The Fox Kumpany claim they belong to them. No compromise has been effected, but Fox still have the eggs.

TO ROME.

John McCormack will finish his initial vocalloid in a few weeks. He will also complete his one picture contract with Fox, and until March he will retire to the 153-acre estate he has purchased within a block's walk of residential Hollywood Boolvard. In March, McCormack steams to Rome to serve as the official interpreter for the American representatives attending the Easter Papal conference. McCormack speaks fluent Italian Hence, the honor conferred upon him. Later, he goes to his castle in Ireland, Moore Abbey, where he remains until October. He has received a flattering offer from a British motion picture company to produce a vocalloid in England. But he intimated he proposes to make another picture in Hollywood Perhaps because of his estate here. Perhaps not. . . .

In speaking of world right to songs, this bureau learned a rather interesting fact. A group of Americans trekked to Europe some time ago and bought up sole right to 10,000 songs for distribution in various countries. Should a picture company desire to incorporate one of these in a picture, they must settle with this company. The time and expenditure is prodigious. For this reason, if no other, the music departments of studios are economically important. It also indicates that the composer—whether he be a jazz or classic composer—is a significant money-saver to the lots.

Victor McLaglen and Eddie Lowe, as you know, are to co-star in a marine shooter yclept "Broadminded." A scene in the picture calls for Vic to seize a sizeable female and toss her bodily to Eddie, who returns her via the air route to Vic without his compliments. "Is this," asks a worried soul, "a case of broadcasting?"

Apropos of his picture, McCormack has recorded 14 songs. To reproduce a song in the talkies—a song not especially written for the picture—it is necessary to purchase the world rights through its publisher. The world rights have been purchased for every song except those he sings in French, German and Italian. From these fourteen recorded vocal numbers, eight will be selected for the picture, and no announcement of their names will be made until the film is ready for release.

NEWS.

A choice gleaning. That Lois Wilson is to be Richard Dix's leading woman in the star's second RKO-er, "I Love You." Being a choice gleaning opines this scribe. A few years ago Lois and Richard were seen together in sundry flicks. Then they each drifted their separate ways amid the lament of colyumnists who were thus compelled to abandon a favorite and an oft rumored engagement story.

Richard and Lois lunched together at the RKO Restaurant yesterday. Passing Evelyn Brent's table, Dix spotted Betty downing a chocolate sundae.

"This won't put avoirdupois on me," admitted Betty.

"Lucky, I call it," sighfully.

Richard doesn't diet, but he watches his calories. Most of us do.

SCREENALITIES: Helen Wills and her husband lunching with John McCormack at the Fox Westwood lot. Few people knew Champ Helen included Hollywood in her honeymoon itinerary . . . Colin Clive is speeding back to London where he will resume his stellar role in "Journey's End." Olive completed his share in the screen version of this w. k. play in a rush. He worked all day, doing retakes, and dashed to the train direct from the Tiffany Studio. He spent three hours in Chicago, and a mere 25 in New York. On his trip West, he was in New York exactly 25 minutes. I am told that Clive could have remained in Hollywood at an eye-raising salary. Famous Players and M.-G.-M. made him offers both here and by wire to him on the train. But Clive had promised the London management of the show that he would return immediately to the footlights after the picture was finished. He kept his word, even though his stage salary is only on hailing terms with that offered him by the above mentioned film outfits.

And—that's all.

RAILROAD WILL SPEND BIG SUM TO IMPROVE

New Haven Setting Aside $15,000,000 For Year.

NEW EQUIPMENT

Ten Electric Locomotives on Purchase Sheet.

By International News Service.

BOSTON.—The New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad has begun the year 1930 with $15,000,000 available for improvements.

The New Haven road, according to President J. J. Pelley, plans to spend on improvements to equipment and permanent facilities in 1930 about $11,500,000 and for new equipment about $3,500,000, a total of $15,000,000.

This expenditure was said to be not up to the totals of recent years because the New Haven's rehabilitation program, carried out through large expenditures during the past twelve years, has put the property in such condition that smaller expenditures for improvements are adequate.

The chief expenditures in the $15,000,000 budget are as follows:

$3,000,000 for ten electric passenger locomotives and 33 multiple unit cars.

$2,300,000 for rebuilding and improving freight and passenger cars.

$1,000,000 for improving steam and electric locomotives.

$975,000 for improved and additional shop, power plant and steamboat facilities.

$2,900,000 for improved roadway, including additional 130 pound rail and stone ballast, with the accompanying track fittings.

$1,650,000 for the improved main line facilities.

47 Years' Practice Taught Dr. Caldwell

Many things about Men and Women

DR. CALDWELL loved people. He studied the habits of his patients and tried to improve their ways of living. His observations over a long period of time convinced him many people were ruining their health by a careless choice of laxatives. Then he determined to write a prescription which would get at the cause of constipation and correct it quickly and safely.

How successful his efforts were is best shown by the fact that the prescription he wrote back in 1885 has become the world's most popular laxative! He prescribed a mixture of herbs and other pure ingredients now known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, in thousands of cases where bad breath, coated tongue, gas, headaches, biliousness, and lack of appetite, or energy showed him that the bowels of men, women or children were sluggish. It proved successful in the most obstinate cases. So men liked it. Old folks liked it because it never gripes. Children liked its pleasant taste. And everybody is pleased with the gentle way it accomplishes its purpose.

By 1888, the demand for this laxative was so great that the doctor permitted it to be bottled and sold by drugstores. Today you can obtain Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin from any drugstore in the world.

BETWEEN YOU AND ME

BY JOAN.

Out of curiosity one day I asked Mr. J. C. Carnahan of Carnahan's Drug Stores how many different items they stocked in their prescription department and his reply was, "I can't even hazard a guess." I do know, however, that we carry over a hundred items that are animal products. The others range from the expensive items which we buy in little five-grain vials to the commonly used liquids which we buy in five-gallon bottles — too numerous to estimate. Even at that there's an occasional prescription we are unable to fill but then no drug store is able to fill every prescription that comes in." "Is it true you have the most complete stocks in this vicinity," I inquired. "That's what they tell us," Mr. Carnahan admitted. Not long ago a Pittsburgh jobber referred a Sewickly druggist to us for some serum, unobtainable in Pittsburgh and we're often called from towns between Wheeling and Pittsburgh for items which are needed in a hurry."

Has any one seen that $150,000.00 rug at Crook's? Some price! Just a little typographical error in our Monday's column. By substituting a comma for a period and adding an extra cipher or two they made a one hundred and fifty dollar rug look like a $150,000 one. Show me the man or woman who could do that without the aid of a typographical error. Now laying all jokes aside—Crook's really have a magnificent collection of rugs and carpets but prices do NOT soar to such heights.

No merchant wants a fire in his store—a fire not only destroys property it destroys more or less business. In 1870 fire loss in the United States averaged $19 per minute. Today the loss averages $1000.00 per minute and these six predominant causes are given by the National Actuarial Bureau: (First) Smoking, through cigars and cigarettes. (2) defective chimneys, furnaces. boilers and pipes (3) spontaneous ignition (4) sparks on roofs, (5) electricity and electrical apparatus (6) carelessness with flatirons. It takes very little thought to convince one that sufficient fire insurance protection is tremendously important and at a very reasonable rate The Lee C. Cooper Agency will insure you against loss by fire. A fire is a fearful thing but a fire not covered by insurance is a tragedy.

Here's a sale event that will "suit" a number of men—this Mid-winter suit sale at Frank Diamond's. And there's as many styles and materials as there are types of men—Suits whose coloring and choice of patterns bids you compare them with others you've seen at much higher prices. Their overcoats too are marked down now—those of domestic and imported fabrics including the much-demanded tweeds, herringbones and diagonals in a variation of styles. Judging from he number of suits and overcoats that have left the racks the past two weeks our men know quality and value when they see it.

Ten cents spent here and there soon mounts up—yes so does 25c and 50c when deposited weekly in First National Christmas Savings Club and just think of the nice check you'll receive in December. In time to do your Christmas shopping. Why not stop at The First National Bank tomorrow and enroll in the 1930 savings Club?

We hope you won't forget Ogilvie's Remodeling Sale beginning tomorrow morning and continuing for eight days. We know of many real bargains in the hosiery department—domestic-toilet goods—dress and coat department—in fact all throughout the entire store.

Signing off 'till Monday,

GOITRE NOT A DISEASE

Milwaukee Doctor Makes Remarkable Discovery

Milwaukee, Wis. — It has been brought to light by scientific research that goitre is not a disease and is not to be treated as such. Dr. A. A. Rock, Dept. F-13, Box 737, Milwaukee, Wis., a prominent goitre specialist for over 24 years, has perfected a different method of treatment for his patients that has proved remarkably successful. This same method is now being used for a home treatment of goitre cases all over the country with astonishing results. The Doctor states that goitre is a condition which grows worse with neglect and recommends immediate attention no matter how small the growth may appear. He strongly opposes needless operations. Dr. Rock is the author of a book that tells in a simple way about treating goitre at home. He has published this book at his own expense and will send a copy free to any one interested. Write him today. —Adv.

CONCERT GIVEN AT CHURCH MEET

Salvation Army Orchestra Plays At Revival Services In Boyce Methodist Church.

A half-hour concert of sacred music by the Salvation Army orchestra was a feature of the revival services in the Boyce Methodist Episcopal church, Klondyke, last night. More than 200 attended the meeting. At the Tuesday night service 21 persons answered the altar call.

The subject of the sermon by the Rev. E. C. Brooks last night was "True Religion."

"God is an accepted thought in practically all our lives today," he said. "We agree that he should be worshipped by all the people of the world, and yet we lose out in His sight because many times we do not have the true religion.

"We cannot escape real work in His service by building great monuments and worshipping images in His name. Religion is not showy. It is something real that comes from the heart and fills our whole life. God will not be satisfied with our outward worship, no matter how expensive or showy it is, unless we reject from our hearts those tendencies which lead to hate, passion and moral ruin."

Joan Crawford Sends Check To Old College Watchman Who Once Aided Her.

By International News Service.

COLUMBUS, Mo.—In the days when Joan Crawford, movie star and wife of Douglas Fairbanks, jr., was Miss Billie Casin, student at Stephens College here, she had a friend in need.

That was in the days before the movies offered her a handsome salary and changed her name to Joan Crawford. She had financial strggles to keep herself in college and it was Henry (Daddy) Lake, faithful old night watchman at the college, who gave Miss Billie financial aid from time to time.

Miss Crawford has never forgotten her faithful friend and not long also, it has come to light here, she sent him a sizeable check in payment for "past favors."

PULLS SWITCH WHICH SENDS MEN TO DEATH

Eastern Executioner One of Nation's Strange Figures.

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
International News Service Staff Correspondent

NEW YORKOne of the strangest, most furtive figures in the United States today is Robert G. Elliott, the man who throws the switch at electrocutions.

He is the official executioner for the states of New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts and Delaware. He has pulled the lever in various execution chambers that has sent scores of murderers into oblivion. He has electrocuted, among others, Ruth Snyder, and Judd Gray and Sacco and Vanzetti.

His pay is $150 per person executed and he probably has the most unwanted job in the country.

At present his home in Queens is under police guards. Of necessity he lives a life of seclusion. Often, after an electrocution, he receives threatening letters. Following the Snyder-Gray executions his home was bombed.

Police On Duty

On the front lawn of the Elliott property in Queens today a police booth stands and a policeman is constantly on duty. There are many reports recently that the executioner was "in imminent danger" after he had snuffed out the lives of Frank Kowalski and Arthur Brown at Sing Sing. Kowalski and Brown killed a policeman in a safe robbery.

However, Elliott continues his secret trips to the State death Chamber at Sing Sing, and to the electrocution buildings in other states.

He does his grisly job efficiently and apparently without any qualms. This writer, who saw him "burn" Ruth Snyder and Judd Gray at Sing Sing and Paul Jaworski, the "killer," at Bellefonte, Pa., can attest to that.

It is a job that would try the most hardened soul. It only takes a minute or two—at most—to put an end to any human being but these minutes just preceding an electrocution seem like ages.

Elliott is a tall, thin, cadaverous-looking man of 62, his sparse hair turned gray. There are long, deep lines in his cheeks and his eyes are deep sunk and hollow.

Proficient In Job

He has become so proficient at his job he no longer needs any signal when to throw the switch. He has it "down pat." He knows exactly what moment to "turn on the juice." He has always a full view of the condemned person even though, as is the case at Sing Sing, the switch he pulls is located in an alcove some fifteen or twenty feet from that contraption called the "chair."

HARVARD SEEKS ELUSIVE COMET

University's Celestial Gazers Focus Big Telescopes On Nomad Of The Skies.

By International News Service.

CAMBRIDGE—The elusive Wilk comet, which has been escaping the telescopic eyes of astronomers since its discovery, may at last be definitely located by Harvard University's celestial gazers.

Harvard astronomers are focusing the big telescope at the observatory here hoping to observe the wanderer of the depths of space, which is calculated to be approaching the sun at a speed of about 1,000,000 miles a second.

The comet was first discovered by an astronomer named Wilk at the University of Cracow, Czechoslovakia. He took a photograph of it and the picture has been enlarged three times at the Yerkes Observatory, William Bay, Wis.

The tail of the comet, which is constantly lengthening as it approaches the sun, was estimated, at the time of its first observance, to be 2,000,000 miles in length.

American toys imported into the United Kingdom last year were valued at more than $600,000.

Each of six airplanes recently delivered to the Greek Navy carries a torpedo weighing more than a ton and can attain a speed of nearly 200 miles an hour when diving to attack a target.

This relieves the irritation that causes getting up nights. The tablets cost 2c each at all drug stores. Keller Laboratory, Mechanicsburg, Ohio or locally at J. D. Holloway.—Adv.

The Bishop Murder Case

Philo Vance Story of Mystery and Crime. . . . By S. S. VAN DINE

CHAPTER 13.

MARKHAM had had several interviews with the members of the Dillard household, in a persistent effort to bring out some trivial point that might lead to a fruitful line of inquiry; and Pardee had been summoned to the district attorney's office to make an affidavit as to what he had observed from his window on the morning of the tragedy. Mrs. Drukker had been interrogated again; but not only did she emphatically deny having looked out of her window that morning, but she scoffed at the idea that she had screamed.

Drukker, when re-questioned, modified somewhat his former testimony. He explained that he might have been mistaken as to the source of the screm, and suggested that it could have come from the street or from one of the court windows of the apartment house. In fact, he said, it was highly unlikely that his mother had uttered the scream, for when he went to her door a moment later she was humming an old German nursery song from Humperdinck's "Hansel und Gretel." Markham, convinced that nothing further was to be learned from either him or Mrs. Drukker, finally concentrated on the Dillard house itself.

Arnesson attended the informal conferences held in Markham's office; but for all his voluble and cynical observations, he appeared to be as much at sea as the rest of us. Vance chaffed him good-naturedly about the mathematical formula that was to solve the case, but Arnesson insisted that a formula could not be worked out until all the factors of the theorem were available. He appeared to regard the entire affair as a kind of Juvenalian lark; and Markham on several occasions gave vent to his exasperation. He reproached Vance for having made Arnesson an unofficial conferee in the investigation, but Vance defended himself on the ground that sooner or later Arnesson would supply some piece of seemingly irrelevant information that could be used as an advantageous point of departure.

"His crimino-mathematical theory is of course rubbish," said Vance. "Phychology—not abstract science—will eventually reduce this conundrum to its elements. But we need material to go on, and Arnesson knows the inwardness of the Dillard home better than we can ever know it. He knows the Drukkers, and he knows Pardee; and it goes without saying that a man who has had the academic honors heaped on him that he has, possesses an unusually keen mind. As long as he gives his thought and attention to the case, there's the chance that he'll hit upon something of vital importance to us."

"You may be right," grumbled Markham. "But the man's derisive attitude gets on my nerves."

"Be more catholic," urged Vance. "Consider his ironies in relation to his scientific speculations. What could be more natural than that a man who projects his mind constantly into the vast interplanet'ry reaches, and deals with light years and infinitis and hyperphysical dimensions, should sniff derisively at the infinitesimals of this life? . . . Stout fella, Arnesson. Not homey and comfortable perhaps, but dashed interestin'."

Vance himself had taken the case with unwonted seriousness. His Menander translations had been definitely put aside. He became moody and waspish—a sure sign that his mind was busy with an absorbing problem.

On Sunday—eight days after the murder of Robin—he said to me:

"Eheu, Van! This problem is unbelievedly subtle. No ordin'ry investigation will ever probe it. It lies in a strange territ'ry of the brain; and its superficial childishness is its most terrible and baffl'in' aspect. Nor is the perpetrator going to be contempt with a single coup. Cock Robin's death serves no definite end. The perverted imagination that concocted this beastly crime is insatiable; and unless we can expose the abnormal psychological mechanism back of it there will be more grim jokes to contend with . . . . ."

The very next morning his prognostication was verified. We went to Markham's office at 11 o'clock to hear Heath's report and to discuss further lines of action. Though nine days had passed since Robin had been found murdered, no progress had been made in the case, and the newspapers had grown bitter in their criticisms of the police and the District Attorney's office. It was therefore with considerable depression that Markham greeted us that Monday morning. Heath had not yet arrived; but when he came a few minutes later it was obvious that he, too, was discouraged.

"We run up against a brick wall, sir, every way we turn," he replied, when he had outlined the results of his men's activities. "There ain't a sign of a motive, and outside of Sperling there's nobody on the landscape that we can hang anything on. I'm coming to the conclusion that it was some stick-up man who ambled into the archery room that morning and messed things up."

"'Stick-up' men, sergeant," countered Vance, "are deuced unimaginative, and they're without a sense of humor; whereas the johnny who sent Robin on the long, long trail had both imagination and humor. He wasn't content merely to kill Robin; he had to turn the act into an insane joke. Then, lest the public wouldn't see the point, he wrote explanat'ry letters to the press. Does that sound like the procedure of an itinerant thug?"

Heath smoked unhappily for several minutes without speaking, and at length turned a gaze of exasperated dismay upon Markham.

"There's no sense in anything that's breaking round this town lately," he complained. "Just this morning a guy named Sprigg was shot in Riverside Park, up near 84th street. Money in his pocket, nothing taken. Just shot. Young fella—a student at Columbia. Lived with his parents; no enemies. Went out to take his usual walk before going to class. Found dead half an hour later by a bricklayer." The sergeant chewed viciously on his cigar. "Now we got that homicide to worry about; and we'll probably get hell from the newspapers if we don't clear it up pronto. And there's nothing—absolutely nothing—to go on."

"Still, sergeant,' said Vance consolingly, "shooting a man is an ordin'ry event. There are numerous commonplace reasons for that sort of crime. It's the scenic and dramatic appurtenances of Robin's murder that play havoc with all our processes of deduction. If only it wasn't a nursery affair—"

Suddenly he stopped speaking, and his eyelids drooped slightly. Leaning forward he very deliberately crushed out his cigarette.

"Did you say, sergeant, that this chap's name was Sprigg?"

Heath nodded gloomily.

"And I say," — despite Vance's effort, there was a note of eagerness in his tone—"what was his first name?"

Heath gave Vance a look of puzzled surprise; but after a brief pause he drew forth his battered notebook and riffled the pages.

"John Sprigg," he answered. "John E. Sprigg."

Vance took out another cigarette and lighted it with great care.

"And tell me: was he shot with a .32?"

"Huh?" Heath's eyes rounded, and his chin shot forward. "Yes, a 32. . . ."

"And was he shot through the top of his head?"

The sergeant sprang to his feet, and stared at Vance with ludicrous bewilderment. Slowly his head moved up and down.

"That right,—But how, sir——?

Vance held up a silencing hand. It was, however, the look on his face, rather than his gesture, that cut short the query.

"Oh, my precious aunt!" He rose like a man in a daze and gazed fixedly before him. Had I not known him so well I would have sworn he was frightened. Then going to the tall window behind Markham's desk he stood looking down on the gray stone walls of the Tombs.

"I can't credit it," he murmured. "It's too ghastly . . . But of course it's so! . . . "

Markham's impatient voice sounded.

"What's all this mumbling about, Vance? Don't be so mysterious! How did you happen to know that Sprigg was shot through the crown with a .32? And what's the point, anyway?"

Vance turned and met Markham's eyes.

"Don't you see?" he asked softly. "It's the second act of this devilish parody! . . . Have you forgotten your 'Mother Goose'?" And in a hushed voice that brought a sense of unutterable horror into that dingy old office he recited:

"There was a little man,
And he had a little gun,
And his bullets were made of lead, lead, lead:
He shot Johnny Sprig
Through the middle of his wig,
And knocked it right off of his head, head, head.

THE STORY THUS FAR:

A man known as Cock Robin is shot through the heart with an arrow on the archery range beside the home of Professor Dillard, a mathematical genius. The crime seems to be a mad man's dramatization of "Who Killed Cock Robin?" District Attorney Markham is puzzled by the apparently senseless circumstances attending the crime and asks the aid of Philo Vance, a wealthy young bachelor who dabbles in the solving of unusual mysteries.

The police get on the trail of Sperling, the last man known to have been with Robin. Both men were in love with Belle Dillard, the professor's niece, and were arguing over her just before Robin was murdered. Sigurd Arnesson, a protege of Dillard's is also a professor of mathematics, and hopes to marry Belle Dillard. He is a brilliant cynical man and jokes lightly about the murder. A neighbor, Pardee, a wealthy disillusioned man with a passion for chess, shows an interest in the case. Mrs. Drukker and her son Adolph, also neighbors, seem to know something which they fear to tell. Mrs. Drukker has an unbalanced mind and believes her son still a baby, Drukker, a cripple, is an abnormal type with a super-intellect, working on startling and radical theories in higher mathematics, Vance determines to question Drukker.

Drukker claims that he heard his mother scream the morning of the murder. The window of her room faces out on the archery range, and Vance believes she has seen something, though she denies it.

Sperling who has been arrested confesses to the murder. But it is plain that he is trying to protect Belle Dillard whom he believes guilty, and Vance is convinced that he is innocent.

Meantime a mysterious mocking note is received from the murderer. It is signed THE BISHOP. Vance assembles the facts in the case, in the hope of forming some theory.

It is discovered Robin was murdered in the archery room in the Dillard house, an arrow thrust through the heart, and then the body was placed on the range But the crime is no nearer to solution.

Then another murder is committed in the same vicinity. The victim is named John E. Sprigg, and the crime, like the other, seems to be a monstrous joke based on the nursery rhyme, "There was a little man, and he had a little gun."

CHAPTER 14.

Markham sat staring at Vance like a man hypnotized. Heath stood rigid, his mouth partly open, his cigar held a few inches from his lips. There was something almost comic in the Sergeant's attitude, and I had a nervous inclination to laugh; but for the moment my blood seemed frozen, and all muscular movement was impossible.

Markham was the first to speak. Jerking his head backward, he brought his hand down violently on the desk-top.

"What new lunacy of yours is this?" He was fighting desperately against Vance's dumbfounding suggestion. "I'm beginning to think the Robin case has affected your mind. Can't a man with the commonplace name of Sprigg be shot without your trying to turn it into some grotesque hocus-pocus?"

"Still, you must admit, Markham, old dear," returned Vance mildly, "this particular Johnny Sprigg was shot with 'a little gun,' through 'the middle of his wig,' so to speak."

"What if he was?" A dull flush had crept into Markham's face. "Is that any reason for your going about babbling Mother-Goose rhymes?"

"Oh, I say! I never babble, don't y' know." Vance had dropped into a chair facing the district attorney's desk. "I may not be a thrillin' elocutionist; but really, now, I don't babble." He gave Heath an ingrating smile. "Do I, Sergeant?"

But Heath had no opinion to express. He still held his astonished pose, though his eyes had now become mere slits in his broad, pugnacious face.

"Are you seriously suggesting? ——?" began Markham; but Vance interrupted him.

"Yes! I'm seriously suggesting that the person who killed Cock Robin with an arrow has vented his grim humor upon the hapless Sprigg. Coincidence is out of the question. Such repetitive parallels would knock the entire foundation out from all sanity and reason. 'Pon my soul, the world is mad enough; but such madness would dissipate all science and rational thinking. Sprigg's death is rather hideous but it must be faced. And however much you may force yourself to protest against its incredible implications you'll eventually have to accept them."

Markham had risen, and was pacing nervously up and down.

"I'll grant there are inexplicable elements in this new crime." His combativeness had gone, and his tone had moderated. "But if we assume, even tentatively, that some maniac is at large reconstructing the rhymes of his nursery days, I can't see how it will help us. It would practically close all routine lines of investigation."

"I shouldn't say that, don't y' know." Vance was smoking meditatively. "I'm inclined to thing that such an assumption would supply us with a definite basis of inquiry."

"Sure!" snapped Heath with ponderous sarcasm. "All we gotta do is to go out and find one bug among six million people. A cinch!"

"Don't let the fumes of discouragement overcome you, Sergeant. Our elusive jester is a rather distinctive entomological specimen. Moreover, we have certain clews as to his exact habits. . . . ."

Markhom swung round. "What do you mean by that?"

"Merely that this second crime is related to the first not only psychologically, but geographically. Both murders were committed within a few blocks of each other,—our destructive demon at least has a weakness for the neighborhood in which the Dillard house is situated. Furthermore, the very factors of the two murders preclude the possibility of his having come from afar to give rein to his distorted humor in unfamiliar surroundings. As I learnedly pointed out to you, Robin was translated into the Beyond by some one who knew all the conditions obtaining at the Dillard house at the exact hour the grisly drama was performed; and surely it's obvious that this second crime could not have been so tidily staged had not the impresario been acquainted with Sprigg's ambulat'ry intentions this morning. Indeed, the entire mechanism of these weird playlets proves that the operator was intimately cognizant of all the circumstances surrounding his victim."

The heavy silence that followed was broken by Heath.

"If you're right, Mr. Vance, then that lets Sperling out." The Sergeant made even this qualified admission reluctantly; but it showed that Vance's argument had not been without its effect on him. He turned desperately to the district attorney. "What do you thing we'd better do, sir?"

Attorney K. L. Cobourn of Salem represented the Perry township trustees, who are opposed to the proposed annexation.

Just before the meeting was opened, a petition signed by 26 residents of "Hillsdale," asking that that territory be annexed to the city of Saem, was presented to the commissioners. This was read to the crowd by President Sinclair.

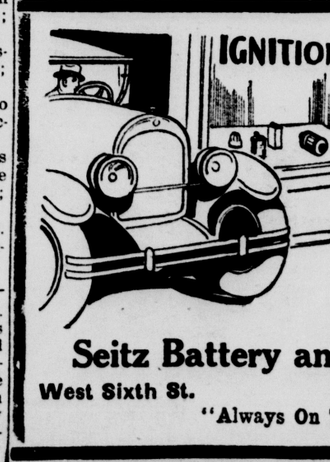

Letters from the Business Bureau and the Kiwanis club of Saem were also read, each favoring the annexation of a portion of Perry township.

The audience was asked to show by the raising of their hand how many opposed annexation and a large number of arms were raised. Similar query was made to indicate the number favoring the proposal. Just a few hands were raised. There were others who did not "vote."

"Always On The Job"

When Babies CRY

Babies will cry, often for no apparent reason. You may not know what's wrong, but you can always give Castoria. This soon has your little one comforted; if not, you should call a doctor. Don't experiment with medicines intended for the stronger systems of adults! Most of those little upsets are soon soothed away by a little of this pleasant-tasting, gentle-acting children's remedy that children like.

It may be the stomach, or may be the little bowels. Or in the case of older children, a sluggish, constipated condition. Castoria is still the thing to give. It is almos certain to clear up any mino ailment, and could by no possi bility do the youngest child th slightest harm. So it's the firs thing to think of when a child ha a coated tongue; won't play, can' sleep, is fretful or out of sorts Get the genuine; it always has Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the package.

100 CRIMINALS ARE DEPORTED

Illinois Purges Herself Of Alien Law-Breakers.

By International News Service.

SPRINGFIELD.—Illinois is purging herself as rapidly as possible of alien criminals.

Already 100 have been deported to the lands from whence they came, and recommendation has been made for 75 additional foreign breakers of American laws. All of these men have served the minimum terms for the crimes of which they have been convicted.

Some 700 more of these criminals remain in the state's penal institutions and Rodney Brandon, director of the state department of public welfare, hopes to secure action in their cases when they have served their minimum terms.

Illinois, Brandon explains, is taking this action with a twofold purpose: first, to rid the state of undesirable aliens; and second to alleviate the crowded conditions of state penal institutions as much as possible. All state institutions of this character are overcrowded and each alien deported makes conditions just that much better.

These alien convicts, when deportation is decided upon, agree with the state government as to their future conduct. When they have been placed aboard ship and are out on the high seas en route to their native lands they are handed pardons signed by the governor. Should they violate their agreement not to return to American soil these pardons become ineffective.

7 Hours in Bed and Not 7 Minutes' Sleep

The Toll Acidity Takes

When you go to bed dog-tired and still can't sleep and you rise in the morning more tired than when you went to bed, it's a sign you're "acid." Excess acid, formed in the stomach as a result of our unnatural eating habits, causes acid-indigestion with gas, sourness and burning and sets up poisonous putrefaction in the gastro-intestinal canal which saps our strength and vitality and so taxes our nerves that we can't sleep at night or work efficiently during the day.

Magnesia Oxoids, developed in Germany by a famous, 100-year-old pharmaceutical house, correct acidity in the right way! Upon contact with the acid in the stomach, Magnesia Ixoids generate nascent, or active, oxygen. The "live" oxygen stimulates the alkaline gastric mucus, checks putrefaction in the gastro-intestinal canal and stimulates the activities of the intestinal wall which aids the natural movement of the bowels. All three effects are necessary to the true correction of acidity.

5-Day Acid Test

To ascertain just how "acid" you are, make this test. Get a package of Magnesia Oxoids from Mathews' Drug Store, Jesse D. Holloway, or any other good druggist. Take two after each meal for a few days and see how much better you feel—how much more soundly you sleep and how much more energy you have. If you don't get more than amazing results, return the balance of the Oxoids to the druggist and he will refund the purchase price promptly and in full.—Adv.

To End a Cough In a Hurry, Mix This at Home

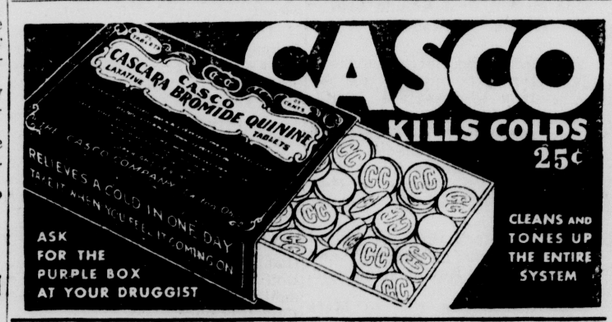

To end a stubborn cough quickly, it is important to soothe and heal the inflamed membranes, get rid of the germs and also to aid the system inwardly to help throw off the trouble.

For these purposes, here is a home-made medicine, far better than anything you could buy at 3 times the cost. From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a pint bottle, and add plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey to fill up the pint. This takes but a moment, and makes a remedy so effective that you will never do without, once you have used it. Keeps perfectly, and children like it.

This simple remedy does three necessary things. First, it loosens the germ-laden phlegm. Second, it soothes away the inflammation. Third, it is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly on the bronchial tubes. This explains why it brings such quick relief, even in the obstinate bronchial coughs which follow cold epidemics.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form, and known as one of the greatest healing agents for severe coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles.

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

U. S. TRACTORS PLOW FURROWS IN RED RUSSIA

Millions of Peasants Plead for Modern Machinery.

REVOLT PICTURE

Frazier Hunt Tells Story of Soviet Progress.

BY FRAZIER HUNT,
European Representative for Cosmopolitan Magazine.

(Written especially for International News Service.) (Copyright, 1930, by International News Service, in the United States and all foreign countries. Reproduction in whole or in part prohibited).

LONDON, Jan. 16.—A peasant boy walking a hundred miles to see a tractor and to learn how to drive it—.

Squads of American tractors plowing furrows five miles long in the rich, black, virgin earth of the giant farm of the Soviets—the greatest wheat farm in the world, now barely two years old—.

Millions of poor peasants flocking into collective farm units and pleading for tractors and modern machinery—. A mass movement beyond belief and beyond proof—.

This is the swinging, kaleidescopic picture I took away from the countryside of great Russia

It is the picture of the real revolution; not the 1917 Lenin revolution, but a deeper, stronger, vastly more important revolution

Get Idea From America.

In 1917 the 125,000,000 peasants took the land and divided it up among themselves. With their age-long land hunger satisfied they felt that they were on the verge of a new life. But it did not come, no new rewards were theirs—no better homes, schools, dresses, shoes, plows, machinery — no better life. The "dark" villages, a million of them scattered over the vast reaches of mighty Russia, remained dark villages—unlit by new hopes, new ideas, education, better equipment, electricity.

They belonged to the past. They plowed and planted and reaped as their grandfather serfs had done a century before. The cities had failed them. The cities took their wheat and their sons and gave them nothing in return but words.

Then out from the golden domed kremlin in far away Moscow—out from the hated cities—out from America—come the idea. It blew like the strong winds that pound and sing their way across the great prairies.

"Machinery Will do it!" Cry.

"Machinery will do it! Come together! Co-operate—bring in the tractors and modern machinery: Industrialize the land, and comforts and a decent life will be yours."

These were the new promises and the high hopes that were loosed over the soviet land.

The state church, beautiful but inadequate, was pounded and propaganda and taxed out of business—and in its place came the new god of machinery. And the old sacred ikon in the corner of the living room was replaced by a poster of an American tractor.

For five years now they have been building up this machine god, salvation is promised — salvation from the hopeless, backward, ignorant past and from the hard, cruel and bitter present.

It is impossible to overestimate what the tractor alone means to three hundred million peasants. It has captured their whole imagination. It is the symbol of all machinery—and machinery is their new god.

"The tractor will give us freedom," a bearded old peasant in the south of Russia said to me. "We will work less and the tractor will plow better than we can do with horses. Machinery will help peasants," and then with a twinkle in his wise old eyes he added "We don't have to feed the tractors in the winter time when they are not working."

New Revolution Spreads.

Another shrewd old peasant in an adjoining village said to me: "We don't belong to the collective now, but we will pretty soon We've seen tractors. They can plow better than we can. They'll make us all rich someday."

So it goes all over Russia. In every village are a little group of young men who have been in the Red army or worked in the cities and have been set afire with the idea of collective ownership and modern machinery. They are the leaven that slowly is awakening the Red consciousness of these countless millions. They have given the initial momentum to this great mass movement that is beginning to sweep over Soviet land, crushing all opposition, breaking down all barriers, spreading the new, the real revolution.

In many ways it is not a pretty picture. At least five million of the best individual farmers, the most intelligent, the ablest and most necessary are being ruthlessly and consciously crushed to death. With the failure of the cities to supply goods and comfort to the villages in return for their grain the Russian peasant individually went on the greatest strike in all history. He simply refused to grow any more grain than he needed for himself. What was the use of a sock full of paper roubles if you couldn't buy anything with them?

Peasant Wins War.

And so it was the great war between the cities and the country was fought out in 1920 and 1921 The peasant won and Lenin brought in his new economic policy that permitted private trading and the more intelligent and shrewder peasant to again become a minor capitalist. He could again employ labor and loan money. He was dubbed "kulak"—the fist.

Of course the more he prospered the more he was despised. With Lenin's death Trotzky wanted to crush him at once. Over this point Trotzky—to many the natural heir to the imperial purple of the great Lenin—and Stalin quarreled. In the end Trotzky was exiled from Soviet Russia — and then Stalin adopted Trotzky's theory of crushing this hated kulak—but added to it this tremendous and startling dream of industrializing the backward Russian land and making it a part and parcel of the whole audacious five year industrialization plan that is to make or break the Soviets.

Today this good farmer — this hard-fisted individualistic man of the soil is being super-taxed out of his property, his horses and cattle and equipment, and he is being made poorer than the most indolent, most stupid peasant in all Russia. He is disfranchised, all privileges are taken from him, he is stripped of his goods and wealth, his children excluded from schools and he himself refused the right to enter into the collectives and co-operatives that are to replace all individual farming.

Farmer Fights Back.

Naturally, he fights back. He burns and destroys and kills—and then he is tried before a red people's court, and taken out and shot.

It is a cruelty difficult to understand—this stamping out of all that is most capable among the peasantry.

"You see" we must crush this rich and powerful peasant or he will crush us," one of the leaders of the nationals' collective movement explained to me. "If we let him into our collective, even after we have stripped him of his property he will dominate the collective. He is shrewder today than the poorer peasants. We must destroy him just as we destroyed the aristocracy and bourgeoise of the cities. Once he is eliminated we can march ahead with our great dream of mechanizing the country life, and in the end of making a new and free citizen of the world from this dark, illiterate peasant of today."

Staid Old Hub Takes Pride In Maintenance of Revolutionary Traditions.

By International News Service.

BOSTON—Even before the tea party, staid old Boston took pride in her spirit of patriotism, the maintenance of her old historic landmarks, and the upkeeping of her Revolutionary days traditions.

Mentioning the public grounds situated in the heart of the city, known as the Boston Common and Public Garden, the Boston Business, a monthly publication of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, says:

"Boston Common dates back to the beginning of Boston's history, its existence and preservation are due to the wise forethought of the first settlers."

Historic records show that shortly after the settlement of the town of Boston, the Boston Common was turned over for a training field and used very much as it is today. The public grazing of cattle on this plot was a common practice even up until the year 1830.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

POTTERS PLAN TWO-DAY TRIP DOWN VALLEY

Edwards Match Is Arranged

Gene Reed, Erie, Pa., Signs for Local Bout.

MATCHMAKER RAY FOUTTS of the Valley A. C., operating at the Eagles' lodge in Broadway, today announced he had definitely closed with Gene Reed, Erie welterweight, formerly on the Pacific coast, to meet Freddy Edwards, Chester, in the eight-round main event at the F. O. E. arena Thursday night of next week.

With the signing of Reed, the best opponent, records show, that Edwards has tackled to date, Foutts has completed his program, which calls for a semi-final, two preliminaries and an added amateur bout.

Reed is under the management of Jim Buchanan, who also handles Willie Davies, the Charleroi flyweight. Buchanan picked up the welterweight about four months ago while on the coast and since that time has kept him fairly busy in western Pennsylvania.

Reed won a semi-final at Motor Square from "Heavy" Andrews who has fought, among others, Jack Zivic. The Erie boy also holds a dicision over Jackie Herman, Wheeling welter and claimant of the West Virginia title.

Ross Fields, the clever Weirton 118-pounder, is paired with Young Sapienza, of Zelienople, Pa., in the six-round semi-final which should, by all odds, provide an exhibition of speed and rapid-fire punching. Harry Devore of Alliance tackles Harry Dempko of Weirton in one four-rounder and Eddie Loos, East Liverpool, who stopped one of the Gypsy Kid's swings with his chin last week, will face the dusky-skinned Beaver Falls kid in a return match of four rounds. Loos is counting on a win this time.

Edwards is working out today with Ted Yarosz at the Y. M. C. A. here and will continue his sessions up until the fight. Ray Mitchell, local welterweight, also is assisting the Chester boxer in his training.

Y. M. C. A. CAGERS PLAY TONIGHT

The second game in the Y. M. C. A. basketball league is scheduled for tonight at 8:15 in the "Y" gym. The Rock Island and the Sante Fe outfits are the contenders. The following men are to report: Rock Island—Paul Jester, David Feit, Mentor McVeigh, Frank Hancock, Gus Mautz, Carl Russell and John Long; Santa Fe—Charles Kidd, Russell Sage, Leonard Greenwood, Paul Cooper, Edwin McGraw, Richard Wilson and Clyde Thornton. The opening game of the season was held Monday night when the Wabash knocked off the Erie by the narrow margin of one point, the final score being 29-28.

Chester Five Records First Loop Victory

Defeats M. E. (A) Passers; Orchard Grove Wins.

The Chester Presbyterians, making their debut in the Sunday school league, defeated the M. E (A) team on the Chester auditorium court Tuesday night by the score of 26 to 16.

Freddy Edwards starred for the Presbyterians with three sensational one-handed shots from the side and a great defensive game Greenwood and Cook were the leading scorers for the M. E. five.

In the second game the Orchard Grove M. E. quint turned back the Emmanuel Presbyterian church five, 24 to 17. The Orchard Grove team seemed to be off form at first, and was unable to get going until the final period when they scored 12 points to come from behind and win. Cunningham, ta', guard of the Emmanuel team, starred for his team, sinking three long shots from the center of the floor. Dunlap, of the M. E. five, led the scorers of both teams with five field goals and two fouls for a total of 12 points.

Carnera To Pack Them In

Reserved Sections Gone Week Ahead Of His Debut.

BY DAVIS J. WALSH,
International News Service Sports Editor.

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—In spite of several things, including the fact that the average chin has at last rejoined the rest of the countenance after hanging down among the haberdashery for weeks, the miracle of Primo Carnera is still effective enough today that Madison Square Garden practically is sold out, a week in advance of his American debut. Advance orders have almost wiped out the reserved sections, leaving the general admission seats to the tender mercies of the mugs. These are so tender that shop keepers in the Garden block are said to be considering the advisability of boarding up their show windows on the night of the fight. Statistics have proved that a mugg and a plate glass window are almost inseparable.

The thing, of course, ought to be a one-man show, in view of the fact that Primo has fearlessly consented to meet Big Boy Peterson himself. The latter isn't appropriately named. The "big" part of it is all right but the "boy" should be something else, rhyming with gum, yum and dumb.

However, nobody seems to care about that. They didn't seem to care yesterday when it cost some of them the fourth part of a dollar to find out that Primo wasn't working at a local gymnasium. Apparently they were satisfied with the fact that they came near seeing him and, if there is 25 cents worth of satisfaction in that, there ought to be one to five dollars worth in seeing Big Boy Peterson swoon before the rapacious monster or something.

As a matter of fact, Primo appears to get by on his own momentum. When he first came here, the papers climbed right up his shoulders and gave three typographical cheers. Then they promptly forgot him and, being that they are supposed to be barometers of public sentiment, the muggs should have forgotten, too. They didn't. Indeed, it begins to look as though they never will.

As to whether the memory will be pleasurable or resentful, time only will disclose. It is my guess that they will resent Primo very deeply, once the spell of his amazing height and weight and feet has worn off. If he goes in there and begins knocking over smaller men, they will resent the unfairness of the match. If he fails to beat his man to a point where the latter is within five minutes' ride of the hospital, they will condemn him as a bum of the worst sort, which, of course, is a big bum.

Either way, therefore, he will be wrong, speaking from the standpoint of popularity. Financially, he will be extremely right, if he proves he can fight at all, because, then, they will go to see him licked. I don't think he plans to object. Most of us, as a matter of fact, would rather be wrong, with money, than right, with penury.

Taking a post-graduate course she is fitting herself for the duties of athletic instructor. Her father is station agent for the Pennsylvania railroad and, as a result, Miss Shenk has competed in a number of athletic meets staged by the railroad in recent years. Her trophies attest to her ability.

Ceramics Defeat Weirton

Nonpariels Triumph Over Blue Jays, 33 to 19.

THE fast stepping Nonpariels added another victory to their string when they toppled the Weirton Blue Jays last night on the "Y" floor, 33 to 19.

The locals were too good all the way for the Steelers, virtually playing them off their feet in the first three periods.

The Nonpariels were on their way to a conquest in the first quarter when they ran up a 10 to 2 lead.

Little scoring was done in the second period — two points in fact —garnered by the visitors and the count at the half consequently, was 10 to 4.

The winners made their shots count in the third period, chalking up 15 points in this period as the Blue Jays got two.

The Weirton quint outscored the locals in the windup canto but not enough to have an effect on the result.

All the Nonperiels played good basketball, Staley, Ankrim and Schneidmiller leading the scoring. Bender carried off point honors for the Jays.

Bellaire, Marietta Next Foes

Girls to Play Red and Black Lassies Tomorrow Night.

THREE road games in a row, two of which will occupy the present week-end dates, fall to the lot of Coach Earl Zook's high school basketball squad.

Bellaire, Marietta and Steubenville are lining up to oppose the progress of the Blue and White quintet in consecutive engagements.

Tomorrow night the Potters invade the precincts of Bellaire and on the following night they go on to Marietta. This combination provides an unusually tough week-end schedule.

However, if the East Liverpool-Bellaire dope runs true to form, the Potters ought to come out with a victory over the Belmont countians although, on the other hand, they can expect trouble because they've generally had their hands full with the Red and Black in previous years.

The Zookmen will leave Friday afternoon for Bellaire. After the game the squad is scheduled to move on to a hotel outside of Bellaire for the night, resuming their journey to Marietta Saturday morning and returning to East Liverpool on Sunday.

Friday night of next week takes the locals to Steubenville and on the following Saturday Martins Ferry plays in East Liverpool. A return game with the Ferrians two weeks later concludes the Potters' activities with Ohio valley rivals.

Miss Miller's girls' team will accompany Zook's squad to Bellaire Friday night, according to schedule, and will play the first half of the double card.

MID-WEST HIT BY COLD WAVE AFTER FLOODS

Frigid Weather Checks Rise of Ohio River.

COLDER TONIGHT

Wintry Blast Sweeping In From Dawson, Alaska.

With a threatened Ohio river rampage checked by a fall in mercury, the East Liverpool district will get another touch of cold weather tonight, part of the frigid wave which is settling its grip on the middle west, it was predicted by government engineers at Dam No. 8 today.

Falling two tenths of a foot every three hours, the river had receded to 21.5 feet at noon. Since the Allegheney and Monongahela rivers are also receding, there is no likelihood of another rise in the near future.

"Much colder tonight" was the forecast received at Lock 8. The temperature at noon was 20 degrees.

Fuel Supply Water-soaked.

With the sudden drop of temperature, northern Ohioans returned to their homes, which they were forced to abandon because of the high water, only to find that furnaces in the flood area had been put out of commission.

Lack of sufficient service halted repairs and indications were that it would be several days before hundreds of homes would again be heated. Cellars in many of the homes are still filled with water, and the fuel supply is water-soaked.

A further drop in the temperature, of three to four degrees, was predicted by the United States weather bureau at Columbus.

Below Zero Predicted.
By International News Service.

CHICAGO, Jan. 16.—Winter's severest cold wave, according to predictions, was setting its grip on the middle west today as a climax to a week of turbulent weather fluctuations that have brought death and the threat of flood disaster to many sections of the country.

Last night and early today thermometers east of the Rockies started a steady glide toward the zero point. A below zero temperature is predicted for the Central state by C. A. Donnel, government forecaster. Donnel stated that tonight may see a temperature of five below zero.

The cold wave is sweeping in from Dawson, Alaska, where 40 below zero temperatures are reported. At present it is 10 below in Montana and North Dakota.

Suffering in Flood Areas.

Acute suffering marked the sudden drop in temperature throughout the flooded areas of the Mississippi basin where rapidly-rising rivers and streams have driven hundreds of families from the shelter of their homes.

The streams were still rising today, driving additional hundreds to evacuate their homes and seek shelter and safety on higher ground. Vincennes, Ind., fought an all-night battle against the flood.

Reinforce Levees.
By International News Service.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Jan. 16—Relief from the ravages of floods in the Mississippi basin was seen today in approaching sub-freezing temperatures which, meterologists said, will partially check the torrents of water moving down from the upper watersheds.

Meantime the flood situation remained critical at a number of points in the lower Mississippi valley. Hundreds of convicts from the Mississippi state prison farm at Parchman were put to work to save the crumbling levee near Lambert, Miss., which threatened to inundate thousands of acres of farmland.

A number of points are being reinforced with sandbags in the vicinity of Big Lake, Ar., and laborers are working around the clock to keep the water from breaking through the levees. Ten thousand more sandbags were sent to the Big Lake area today.

Large areas in Mississippi, Kentucky and Tennessee already inundated from a week's accumulation of water, now pouring into the Mississippi from a network of tributaries. However, engineers were positive that all Mississippi river levees are in good shape and can stand the immense pressure.

By International News Service.
Highways Blocked.

DENVER, Jan. 16. — New low temperature records were being set in the Rocky Mountain region today as the mercury that already has held below zero for two weeks, continued to slip.

Heavy snows were falling in Colorado and New Mexico, huge drifts closing highways and blocking mountain passes. Highways between Albuquerque and Santa Fe were blocked or closed because of slippery road surfaces.

A new low record for the season was set in Denver when the mercury nosed down to nine degree below zero.

Basin, Mont., crackled under 32 below. Sheridan, Wyo., reported 24 below.

Livestock is Doomed.
By International News Service.

VINCENNES, Ind., Jan. 16. — Considerable livestock was swept to doom by the second disastrous levee break in this flood-scourged vicinity, a checkup revealed today.

The Plas levee broke last night two miles north of Decker and about 12 miles south of here.

Through a gap more than 200 feet wide today, the murky torrent poured out and covered more than 25,000 additional acres of land. Another 100 farmers, it was estimated, were driven from their homes, but no lives were lost.

Despite this levee break the White river at Decker continued to rise today and had reached a stage of 28 feet this morning as compared with the record 1913 mark of 28.8.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 16.—Mrs. Terra Elder, 38, was in a critical condition in White Cross hospital here today, following an accidental firing of a revolver which she attempted to pick up from a table in her home yesterday. Mrs. Elder received a wound in her left side. Her son, Jack, 16, witnessed the accident.

Pile sufferers can only get quick, safe and lasting relief by removing the cause—bad blood circulation in the lower bowel. Cutting and salves can't do this—an internal remedy must be used. Hem-Roid has a wonderful record for quick, safe and lasting relief to Pile sufferers. It will do the same for you or money back. tity, the woman denied that she was Mrs. Schroeder. She also denied a previous statement that she had been living with Dague.

Hint Brother Slain.

Sheriff Charles H. Wright is inclined to believe that Wells is not the woman's brother, but the arrival of the Pennsylvania officer is awaited for his identification.

That the real Crawford may have been at Yuma, Arizona, was the opinion advanced here today. While Chapman was their captive, Mrs. Schroeder and her companions repeatedly evinced a desire to reach that town.

Another theory was that Crawford may have been killed in Texas. Telling a rambling story, while apparently intoxicated, the woman, according to Chapman, pointed at him and said: "It was three dirty skunks like you who killed my brother in Texas."

Mrs. Schroeder, when officers seek to question her, now feigns unconsciousness.

The three prisoners deny any knowledge of the slaying of Brady Paul.

Should Pennsylvania be unable to produce sufficient evidence to convict her of murder, authorities here said the pretty mother would have to stand trial on a charge of kidnapping a deputy sheriff at Florence, Ariz. The penalty for kidnapping is life imprisonment.

Irene Schroeder and Dague are wanted in connection with a bank robbery and three holdups in Texas also.

FAVOR WELFARE CHEST IN CITY

Churches, Lodges and Other Relief Agencies Discuss Community Plan Proposal.

The proposed establishment of a community chest for relief and welfare activities and the organization of a clearing house to eliminate the duplication of charity work were discussed by representatives of about a dozen church, lodges, welfare organizations and township trustees in the Y. M. C. A. last night.

The meeting was called by Attorney Frank Hoover, chairman of the East Liverpool chapter of the American Red Cross. The St. Stephen's Episcopal, St. Aloysius and St. Ann's Catholic and Methodist Episcopal and Salvation Army, Eagles, Elks, Veterans of Foreign Wars, American Legion, Red Cross, Y. M. C. A. and the health seal organizations were represented.

J. S. Hilbert, the Rev. Father Thomas E. Walsh, the Rev. R. K. Caulk and Township Trustee George Smith were named members of a committee to ascertain sentiment regarding the proposal. Field Major Joseph Hughes of the Salvation Army, the Rev. Dr. Warren O. Hawkins and Mrs. Florence N. Bowers were named members of a committee to devise ways and means for the establishment of a council of social agencies to handle relief work. Both committees will report at a meeting to be held February 13.

Work for this year was mapped out at a meeting of the Red Cross representatives which followed. Chairman Hoover was instructed to negotiate with national headquarters regarding the employment of a full-time secretary to handle welfare work.
